Keep your personal books where your baby can reach them.

Make sure books are as easy to reach, hold, and look at as toys. Remember, a baby will do with a book what he does with everything else, put it in his mouth. And that's exactly what he's supposed to do, so you may only want to put chewable books within reach.

Choose engaging books.

Books featuring animals or machines invite movement and making sounds. Books with flaps or different textures to touch keep hands busy. Books with detailed illustrations or recurring items hidden in the pictures are great for exploring and discussing.

Sharing stories with your child doesn't mean you have to read. Just by looking at books with your child, you can be a great storyteller and a good model for using language and books. Your child will learn by watching you hold a book the right way and by seeing how you move through the book gently turning the pages.
