Give baby a hand!

Encourage your baby to pick up crackers or peas, touch noses and toes, point to pictures and grab toys. The muscles in those little hands will grow strong, agile, and ready to turn pages.

Every day is an adventure when you're a toddler.

Choose books about everyday experiences and feelings. Your child will identify with the characters as they dress, eat, visit, nap, and play.

Reading stories sparks your child's imagination, stimulates curiosity and helps with the brain development. Interesting illustrations and word patterns-such as rhymes-can get your child talking about what they are seeing and thinking and help them understand the patterns of language. Exploring stories also helps them to learn the difference between 'real' and 'make-believe'.
